

We are confident.
We are inquisitive.
We are scientists.

Science Vocabulary of the Week

omnivore

A omnivore is an animal that can survive by eating both meat and plants.

Omnivores are some of the most successful animals on Earth. They have a wide-ranging diet which means they are able to find food in most environments. The majority of omnivores are mammals. However, there are reptiles, birds, and fish that are also classed as omnivorous.