Whose Dog Is This?

by Andrew Sanders

This is a funny story between a brave boy and a secret agent dog. I love this book and I have read it lots of times.

When Albert's Dad opens the living room door to a scene of total chaos (think: mud-covered sofa, macaroni cheese on the walls), Albert blames it on the dog.

The thing is . . . Albert doesn't have a dog. But there's definitely a dog in the living room.

Will Albert be able to talk himself out of this very sticky situation?
