

We are confident.
We are inquisitive.
We are scientists.

Science Vocabulary of the Month

observe

In science to observe is using our senses to gather information about the world around us. It involves using science skills, paying close attention to the details, making careful notes or drawings, and using tools to help us notice and see things better.