

What is design technology?

In Design and Technology, we design, make and evaluate our own products. We look at what is already there, use our own ideas of what we would like to make, and then create! We look at our products as we go along, making changes and thinking about what works and what doesn't. We evaluate to think about what went well, and what we would do differently if we made our product again.

