

What is history?

History is the study of the past. We learn about the past by studying key historical events and the impact that some people have had on the world.

We can use different sources to give us clues about what might have happened.

artefacts

evidence